

Zack Chron's wonderful BuildZ blog has some great content on various ways of pushing Revit when it comes to complex 3D geometry. His latest offering looks at "using divided surfaces for complex arrays".

To exemplify what Zack is talking about, he creates a model of a cable stayed bridge.

Check out the entire article here